

Our Cookie Policy

Our website uses cookies to distinguish you from other users of our website. This helps us to provide you with a good experience when you browse our website and allows us to improve our website. By continuing to browse this website, you are agreeing to our use of cookies.

A cookie is a small file of letters and numbers which we store in your browser or the hard drive of your computer (with your agreement). Cookies contain information which is transferred to your computer's hard drive.

You can find more information about the purposes of the cookies we use below:

1. WordPress Cookies
WordPress is the content management system used by this website. WordPress uses cookies to keep track of logged in users.
2. Google Maps (for the display of interactive maps)
Some of our pages include interactive maps provided by Google. Google may set cookies to store information and preferences about maps or other associated Google services on pages where we embed Google maps.
3. Wordfence Security (WordPress security plug-in)
Wordfence is a security plug-in for WordPress and helps keep the site safe and secure. This plug-in will check you're a real human visitor and your geographical location.
4. Cookie Notifications
Ironically, to keep track of whether we have shown you the cookie notification message (and your acceptance), we need to set a cookie.

Controlling and blocking cookies

You can block cookies by activating the setting on your browser that allows you to refuse the setting of all or some cookies. However, if you use your browser settings to block all cookies (including essential cookies) you may not be able to access all or parts of our website.

More information

For more information, including how to control and disable cookies, please visit cookiesandyou.com.

(Document last updated: 7 April 2018)